The remains were about 2ft. below the surface, and had evidently been buried with the clothes on, as the boots were still on the feet, and decayed clothing was found on the body. The iron handle of a cross-cut saw dropped from the skull when it was removed from the ground. A pocket knife, threepenny piece, and a match box were also found. These remains are supposed to be those of Michael Hands, exp., late 7716, who resided at the house about the year 1880 (and has not since been heard of), with a man named Edward Jenkinson, who has been arrested on suspicion of having caused his death.

The remains were about 2ft. below the surface, and had evidently been buried with the clothes on, as the boots were still on the feet, and decayed clothing was found on the body. The iron handle of a cross-cut saw dropped from the skull when it was removed from the ground. A pocket knife, threepenny piece, and a match box were also found. Murder.

On the 25th ult., while two men named Eli Prim and George Russell were employed making some excavations to erect a manger in a building attached to a dwelling house known as Stokes Station, Wanneroo, they came upon some human remains, which upon removal and examination by the police and Colonial Surgeon proved to be those of an adult male, apparently about 45 years of age. The remains were about 2ft. below the surface, and had evidently been buried with the clothes on, as the boots were still on the feet, and decayed clothing was found on the body. The iron handle of a cross-cut saw dropped from the skull when it was removed from the ground. A pocket knife, threepenny piece, and a match box were also found. These remains are supposed to be those of Michael Hands, exp., late 7716, who resided at the house about the year 1880 (and has not since been heard of), with a man named Edward Jenkinson, who has been arrested on suspicion of having caused his death.
