C.O. $\frac{1}{1901}$.—Members of the Police Force are directed to co-operate, as far as possible, with the officers who are appointed either by the Central or Local Boards of Health to enforce the regulations framed to prevent a further spread of the bubonic plague.

Any breach of these regulations, however slight, which comes under the notice of the Police must be reported at once.

As great difficulty is experienced in securing convictions against householders and others for the non-destruction of rats, the Police must render every possible assistance to the health authorities in order to enforce the penalty for the non-compliance with the order.

The regulations referred to appear in the Government Gazette of 5th April, 1901, page 1346.

FRED. HARE,
Commissioner of Police.
